Amplify Your Career with an Edge

Nova Southeastern University (NSU) is the first university in the world to offer an international post-master's Doctor of Audiology (Au.D.) program, with the goal of augmenting and expanding the academic and clinical knowledge base of the working practitioner. Internationally renowned professors teach this advanced professional degree program.

NSU's Au.D. program is clinically focused. You'll be trained to evaluate and critically apply current research to determine and enhance clinical efficacy, while demonstrating the ability to assume a leadership role in business practices. Through coursework and training, you will have the ability to apply appropriate technologies to accomplish research, diagnosis, management, and treatment.

Courses are offered in London and are taught in an extended-weekend, live format every other month for a period of approximately two years.
